Over-55 Home Sale Exemption Definition

This valuable concession means that most homeowners will not pay tax on the sale of their home. Before 1997, the exemption was a once-in-a-lifetime concession available only to seniors. Now, qualifying sellers can claim the exclusion repeatedly, as long as they have not excluded a home sale gain within the previous two years.

They could take a once in a lifetime tax exemption of up to $125,000 in profits. This required Form 2119 to be filed too. Thankfully, in 1997, the Taxpayers Relief Act was introduced, and millions of residential taxpayers had the burden lifted. The lifetime option was replaced with the current sale of home exclusion amounts.
